

ABSTRACT

A solution for substrate spotting and spotting method for immobilizing a biological substance or various chemical substances on a substrate at high density. The solution for substrate spotting and the spotting method involve mixing a solution comprising a biological substance or chemical substance to be spotted with a solution to which an inorganic fine powder has been added as a surface tension regulating agent.